

Vacancy for National Women's Coach

Author: Paul Stimpson

Posted On: November 18, 2020

Applications are sought for a National Coach to lead the England women's team into the 2022 Birmingham Commonwealth Games.

Table Tennis England and the University of Nottingham (UoN) are working in partnership to recruit an individual who will combine the National Coach role with that of UoN Head of Performance Table Tennis.

The National Coach element will include planning and delivering the women's programme in line with Table Tennis England's performance objectives, as well as leading the team into major championships between now and the Games.

The UoN aspect of the role will include leading and inspiring the table tennis coaching team to deliver an outstanding table tennis experience for students and developing key partnerships and networks at domestic and international level to enhance performance, recruitment and profile in line with the University Vision for sport.

The coach will also work with the younger England pathway players.
