Mollie Patterson had a fantastic weekend at the Preston Grand Prix, barely putting a foot wrong as she won three singles titles – the Under-21s and Band 1 as well as the blue riband Women's Singles.

Patterson justified her top seeding as she won the Women's Singles, recovering from losing the opening set in both semi-final and final.

The final saw her defeat second seed Hoi Ting Lam 3-1 (9-11, 13-11, 11-6, 11-4), while she had previously got past third seed Froydis Jorgensen in the semi-finals by a margin of 3-1 (10-12, 11-7, 11-5, 11-8)

Lam's semi-final was against seventh seed Kate Roberts and she won it 3-0 (6, 8, 9). Roberts earlier defeated fifth seed Bethany O'Connell 11-7 in a decider in the quarters.

Men's Singles

Men's Singles champion Grigory Vlasov

Top seed Grigory Vlasov duly took the Men's Singles title, but needed five sets to get past surprise finalist Radoslav Kamberov, ranked No 11 in the competition.

Kamberov staged a fine comeback after losing the first two sets, but Vlasov finally got over the line in the decider for a 3-2 (11-5, 11-6, 6-11, 6-11, 11-7) victory.

Vlasov had faced up to young England prospect Toby Ellis in the semi-finals, coming through 3-0 (8, 3, 7) against a player ranked No 16, who was fresh from competing at the WTT Youth Contender event in Italy last week. Ellis had earlier overcome fellow England youngsters Adam Dennison and Rhys Davies – the latter in five in the quarter-finals.

In the bottom half of the draw, Kamberov defeated second seed and Crawley champion Sam Mabey in five in the semi-finals, finally getting through 3-2 (11-9, 9-11, 11-5, 2-11, 11-4).
