

Preview of our new, improved website

Here is the first glimpse of the new Table Tennis England website which will be launched in the coming weeks.

It has been created with the intention of improving the user experience, making it easier to find the information you need – whether you are a player, official, coach, volunteer, spectator, parent, teacher or completely new to table tennis.

We have been working with our partners at Jask Creative, who have designed and built the new site, which has a modern and fresh look as well as improved navigation. It is also designed to high standards of inclusivity and is fully compatible with all devices, from mobile phones to desktops.

We are currently finalising the content and undertaking testing with the aim to launch in January.

We are also creating an online archive and members' area which will be a fantastic new resource for information about our sport.

The latest Board minutes and National Council and Members' Advisory Group papers will be stored there – in easily downloadable format – and the site will also contain Annual Reviews and rankings and ratings lists.

The full Table Tennis News magazine archive will be accessible from this area and, in time, further historic records and a performance and tournaments archive will be added.

Table Tennis England Chief Executive Sara Sutcliffe said: "We're excited to launch our new website in the next few weeks.

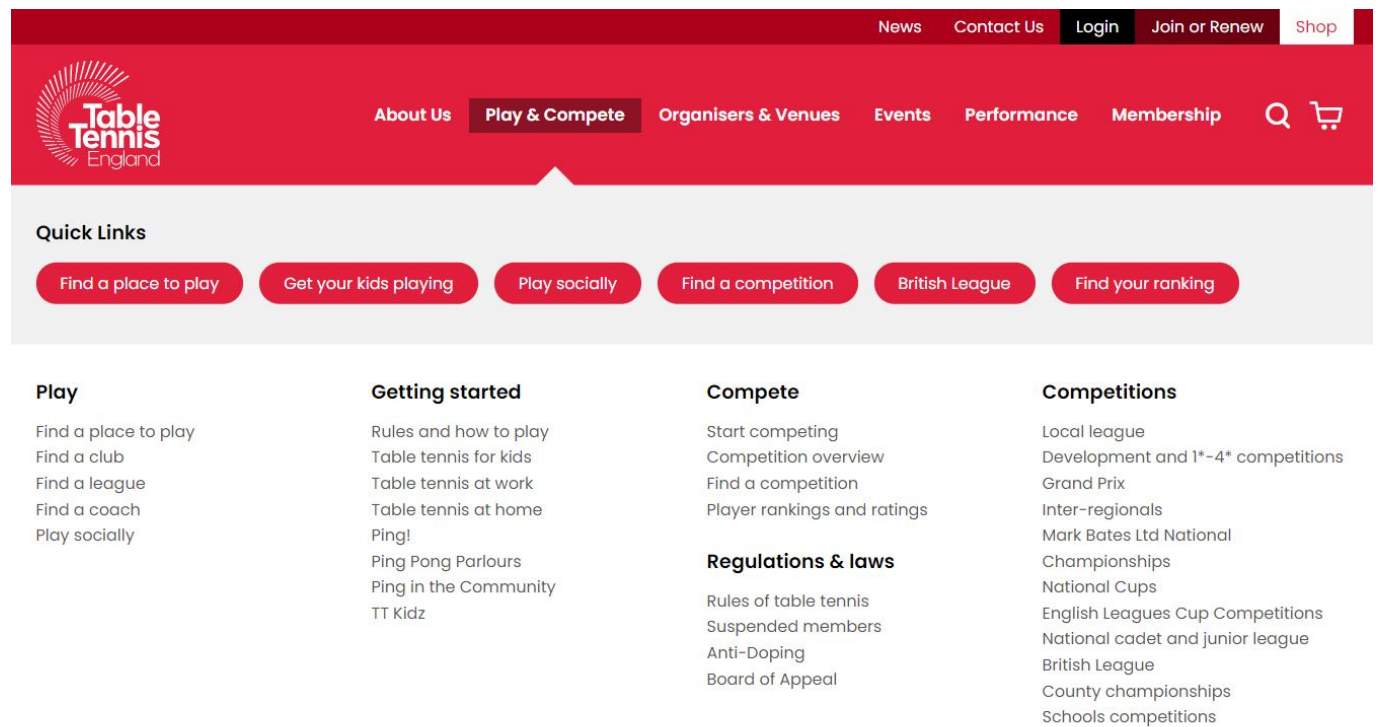

"The primary intention is to provide the best possible experience for people visiting the site, making it easy to navigate and find the information they need to start or continue their journey in table tennis – in short, it will be our shop window for the sport.

"The creation of the online archive and members' area will also allow us to provide even more information to the table tennis community about all aspects of our sport.”

Recharged Pitchford ready for crack at the top

Liam Pitchford says a much-needed break, followed by quality practice in familiar surroundings, has him in good shape to face the new season, starting with the Europe Top 16 next weekend.

Pitchford last played at the WTT Contender Budapest last month, after which he switched off from the sport for a couple of weeks before returning to practise in Copenhagen, where he used to live and train.

And he says that combination has revived his mentality and helped him rediscover his love for the sport after a difficult year which included elimination in his first match at the Olympics.

The England No 1 said: "I took a couple of weeks off after Hungary to get my head back on and not think about table tennis for a bit.
