Obama and Cameron Team Up

Author: Paul Stimpson

Posted On: May 25, 2011

US President Barack Obama and British Prime Minister David Cameron playing table tennis

President Barack Obama continued his diplomatic tour of Europe with a game of table tennis with Prime Minister David Cameron and a group of London junior high schoolers.

After spending most of Tuesday at Buckingham Palace in the company of Queen Elizabeth, her husband Prince Philip and other royal family members, Obama met Cameron at 10 Downing St. before making their way to the Globe Academy in London's Southwark neighborhood. The two leaders wandered into the school's gym, where a table tennis table was set up and the two left handers teamed up against two pupils.

View more from Barack Obama and David Cameron playing table tennis on the BBC website

Also hear Alan Cooke, head coach of Britain's Olympic women's team, analyse the world leaders' performance on the Guardian website

Downloaded From:
https://newsarchive.tabletennisengland.co.uk/news/archived/obama-and-cameron-team-up/