

Jenkins disqualified from Austrian Open

Author: Paul Stimpson

Posted On: September 22, 2011

Shock disqualification for Jenkins

Ryan Jenkins has fallen foul of the authorities and has been disqualified from his qualifying group after 'a small piece of wood was found missing on side on bat from collision with edge'.

The Welsh star released the information on Twitter after winning both his qualifying games but being disqualified for the strange circumstance.

Jenkins (318) beat Jung Sam Lee (119) from Korea 4-1 (11-4, 6-11, 11-9, 11-4, 11-7) and also beat Emilien Vanrossomme from Belgium but will not play alongside Paul Drinkhall and Andrew Baggaley in the next round after the technicalities.

Jenkins added on his Twitter: "It would have been nice to join [Paul Drinkhall] and A Baggs in next round. Good luck to them."

Vanrossomme was also disqualified during the event.

For more information and latest news on the Austrian Open or to leave your reaction to this bizarre story, follow our Twitter updates or like our page on Facebook.

Charlotte Carey also tweeted a picture of the offending item below:

The offending bat

Downloaded From:

<https://newsarchive.tabletennisengland.co.uk/news/archived/jenkins-disqualified-from-austrian-open/>