

Pitchford interview on BBC website

Author: Paul Stimpson

Posted On: January 23, 2012

Liam Pitchford believes he can beat anybody and who's to prove him wrong?

England number 1 and one of the best home-grown table tennis hopes for London 2012, Liam Pitchford, has appeared on the BBC website after giving Andrew Toft from BBC Sport an interview following his appearance in the Energis Masters over the weekend.

The tournament was eventually won by world number 4 Timo Boll ahead of Jorgen Persson in the final. However, Pitchford lost narrowly 3-2 to Boll in his group while also picking up a game against former world champion Werner Schlager in Germany.

In this interview Pitchford talks about his new life and surroundings in Germany as well as his Olympic hopes and new-found beliefs after his performances at the European Championships and the World Junior Championships.

You can read the full article here

Downloaded From:

<https://newsarchive.tabletennisengland.co.uk/news/archived/pitchford-interview-on-bbc-website/>