

Paralympics close at hand

Author: Paul Stimpson

Posted On: August 14, 2012

The Olympics may have ended last week in a flurry of medals for Team GB but just around the corner comes the Paralympics – with table tennis medal prospects high on the agenda for the host nation.

While much of the country is still reeling from an Olympic-induced hangover based on a mix of British pride, success and an unusual ability to host a smooth-running tournament (albeit with another exit on penalties for the football team), it's the next couple of weeks that could bring big prizes home for the Great British Table Tennis Team as they realise their dreams in ExCeL.

Whether you were at any of the table tennis sessions during the Olympics or not, you can still be a part of the Paralympic experience with tickets available for GB's attempts to secure gold in several of the Paralympic classes.

From poster boy Will Bayley, youngster Ross Wilson, charismatic David Wetherill, European Champions Sara Head and Jane Campbell to the ultra-experienced Sue Gilroy there are plenty of chances for GB to pick up a medal so don't miss out when the Games fever hits again.

Paralympic tickets can be found at this site (when available) so that you too can cheer our athletes on to victory.

Paralympic tickets

Downloaded From:

<https://newsarchive.tabletennisengland.co.uk/news/archived/paralympics-close-at-hand/>