Three out of the four England sides at the European Youth Championships (Ostrava, CZE) advanced through to the play-off stages by winning their groups as the English players battled through some tough encounters.

With only the cadet girls side unable to muster a victory, there was plenty of promise from the other three contenders as time after time the players stepped up to the plate in important matches.

The English Junior Boys team led the charge with four successive group stage victories, but it wouldn't have been the case had Igor Morais and Helshan Weerasinghe both won important matches in the 3-2 triumph over Ukraine. With junior no. 1 Sam Walker being defeated by Kyrlyo Samokysh it was crucial that both Morais and Weerasinghe made no mistakes in their respective games. In the end both players won 3-0 and ensured of England's berth at the top of Group E.

The Junior Girls also had to call upon their full squad to win Group G as both Maria Tsaptsinos and Emily Bolton picked up vital wins to help defeat Norway 3-2 and Bosnia & Herzegovina 3-2.

After Tin-Tin Ho's double against Norway it was left to Tsaptsinos to win the deciding encounter with Sara Berner to bring home the victory. Despite dropping the first game 11-8, she fought back brilliantly to win the next three games comfortably and give England their first close win.

This result was then bettered upon in the next fixture against Bosnia & Herzegovina after Tin-Tin had lost in straight games to Emina Hadziahmetovic in the opening rubber. However, both Tsaptsinos (3-2 victor over Sanja Milojica) and Bolton (3-2 winner against Ajla Kovac) held their nerve to give England the upper hand and eventually the 3-2 win.

The cadet boys found their going slightly easier through the group stages with comfortable wins over Ireland and Ukraine, but they were pushed to the limit by a plucky Scottish side led by the impressive Chris Wheeler. With Wheeler beating Luke Savill and helping partner Yaser Razouk to a doubles win, his match against Tom Jarvis would prove pivotal to the result.

Just like over the rest of the weekend, the Englishman stepped up to the plate once more and won a titanic battle with the Scot in a match that went the full distance 3-2 (8-11, 11-9, 16-14, 3-11, 11-6).

Unfortunately, the news was not all good as the cadet girls, for the first time without Tin-Tin, were unable to pick up a team win against Italy, Estonia or Netherlands. There were some positives, however, as Letitia McMullan showed promise in two singles victories against Anita Lissovenko (EST) and Rachel Gerarts (NED).

On Sunday the sides will battle through the knock-out stages to reach a final position and potentially, some medals.
