Evans and McBeath stand top of the podium in Guernsey

Twenty-year-old Gavin Evans and 21-year-old David McBeath have been given the chance to defend their Senior Six Nations title after being selected to represent England again in Wales next month.

The pair will be joined by 22-year-old Chris Doran in the three-day event on November 15-17th. Evans will also be defending the Men's Singles title which he won after beating McBeath in the 2012 final.

The English women, will be hoping to regain the title they lost last season. Both Hannah Hicks and Karina Le Fevre have been selected again to represent the side and they will be joined by Hampshire youngster Tressa Armitage.

The team will hope to improve upon the silver medal they won in Guernsey last time out and make further progress in the singles where Hicks was the only medal winner with the bronze she secured for reaching the semi-final stage.
