Tin-Tin Ho has been shortlisted for the Young Sports Person of the Year at the British Ethnic Diversity Sports Awards.

The 16-year-old Londoner had a great year, including winning Commonwealth Games silver in the mixed doubles, alongside Liam Pitchford.

She also competed on the world stage at senior level as part of the England squads at the World and European Team Championships, as well as at the World Junior Championships.

She is on a shortlist of three for the awards, with the winner to be revealed at a ceremony at the Ricoh Arena in Coventry on Saturday February 21.
