The Jack Petchey Foundation, a major supporter of table tennis, will this year reach £100m of investment in young people as well as celebrating its 15th anniversary.

One of the Foundation's key projects is the London Schools Table Tennis Programme, which is delivered in partnership with Table Tennis England, which has introduced thousands of youngsters in London and Essex to our sport.

The Foundation is celebrating these milestones in style with a big event at London's Theatre Royal, Drury Lane.

Called Ignite, the show is a festival of youth and our table tennis players have the opportunity to join the party.
