

Friday Photos No 51: Who earned these badges?

This week there is a slightly different theme. I have had passed to me a selection of cloth and pin badges from relatives of the late Elsie and Jack Carrington. There are three different England badges, one in green with an 'O' behind the three leopards and two with red leopards, one of which has a 'C' behind.

Does anyone know the history of the different colours and what the 'O' and 'C' stand for? Could the 'C' be for coach or captain?

I have also included the three star coach's badge, a scheme which Jack introduced, and a rather nice cloth badge for the Europe Cup, the precursor to the European League, I believe.

Finally, there is one metal badge in pale blue. Does anyone know what event this badge was made for?

I can be contacted on DianeK1414@hotmail.co.uk and all information is much appreciated. A reminder that all previous weeks' photos can be found under 'About' and then 'From the Archives'.

Many thanks to everyone who has provided information over the last couple of weeks including those from different parts of Europe.
