The ever popular destination of Bristol lived up to all expectations on day one of the third Grand Prix of the 2015/16 season. It would have been yet another Grand Prix to have over 200 entries had the schedule permitted, but sadly entries had to be declined and on this occasion we were reduced to just four short, at 196.

Men's Band 1

Danny Lawrence took the prize money home after winning the Men's Band 1 final against Men's Band 2 champion, Callum Evans who did not give in and fought through the match becoming a tough opponent, but not managing to win any of the three sets.

Lawrence also passed the semi-final stage with a 3-0 score line over Dominic Sussex. A 3-1 score for him in the quarter-final, followed his winning streak that began when he became winner of group one.

Not so lucky as in the previous band, Callum Evans assured himself a place in the final winning 3-0 against Niall Cameron in the semi-final. Callum also won all three sets in the previous round battling past the winner of group three, Ryan Fellows. To reach that stage, Evans had taken the lead in group 5 and then another clear victory 11-6, 11-4, 11-2, his opponent in the quarter-final, Rajan Waterman.

Nottingham University student Emma Ludlow won the Women's Band 1 event beating Rachel Baker with a 3-2 score in a very intense and equal battle. Her previous win came easier as it was a 3-0 victory, passing Zoe Cheesman in the semi-final.

Taking home second place, Rachel Baker managed to get her place in the final after beating Emily Bolton in a tough semi-final where she lost two of the five sets played.

Evans started as he meant to go on; leaving runner-up of his group, Bradley Tuttle, behind after a clear 3-1 result. When the quarter-finals arrived, the number one England Cadet boy, Ethan Walsh lost against the Welsh champion 11-8, 7-11, 11-9, 11-7. The unstoppable band winner, Evans, sailed through his semi-final winning 3-0 against Zoltan Hosszu.

On the other side of the draw, Calum Morrison scraped past Dean Cundy to then meet Esben Larsen of Denmark and made his way to the semi-final having had won 3-1. Richard Carden then lost to Morrison 7-11, 7-11, 11-9, 10-12.

The champion to be, had a long challenging semi-final that she finally won 11-8, 8-11, 11-5, 10-12, 11-5 over Amy Blagbrough. Previously, Zoe Cheesman had tried to stop Roberts but only managed to take one out of the four sets played.

On her way to reaching the final, Emily Bolton started by beating Jersey player Kelsey LeMaistre 3-0 but then found it harder in her quarter-final. Playing Sally Hughes she started by losing the first 11-9, but eventually turned the score around, winning the next three sets.

hadn't been the first good victories of the day for Hugh as he had previously passed through the quarter-final winning 3-0 over Michael Harvey and previously, the same 3-0 score was set against Brett Heppenstall.

In the other half, Louis Price had it a bit harder. In the semi-final match he won a very tight five setter against Paul Laverty.
