The entry deadline for the South Shields Grand Prix has been extended until Wednesday.

The competition on December 12 and 13, the fourth of this season's Grand Prix series, has already attracted a good entry, including England stars Kelly Sibley and Karina Le Fevre plus last year's men's champion Craig Howieson.

But there are still spaces left in the tournament, which features banded play on Saturday and the open competitions on the Sunday.

Entries can be taken up to 11.59pm on Wednesday – click here for more information and to enter

Entries are also now open for the Nottingham Grand Prix on January 30 and 31.
