Introducing our new website! Table Tennis England has launched its new website which aims to make it easier for everyone to find out the information they need.

The structure has been simplified so that every page can be reached within three clicks, with easier-to-understand menus making navigation around the site much smoother than in the past.

The website is now also fully responsive, meaning it can be viewed more easily on tablets, mobile phones and other devices.

Among the other changes, the competitions page has been improved and the rankings pages are now fully searchable.

The majority of the work on the new website has been carried out in-house by the Communications team, at minimal cost to the organisation.

New features will be added in the months ahead, including a table finder and e-commerce functions.

The new website is rolling out over the next fortnight, with a transition period from the old to the new – so some pages may display in the old style for a few days.
