Don't miss your chance to see England's best players in action on home soil as they get their European Championships qualifying campaign under way.

The Leopards men's team will be the first in action when they host Greece in Stoke on Tuesday November 1.

It promises to be a pivotal match in a group which also includes the Netherlands. Can England – with three Rio Olympians to choose from – make a winning start against tough opponents whose leading player Panagiotis Gionis is also at the Games?

Tickets are on sale from today for the clash and Table Tennis England members can enjoy a 10% earlybird discount during the first week of sales.

If you have already paid your 2016/17 membership fee, you will receive a discount code to enter when you buy tickets online. If you haven't yet become a member for 2016/17, don't miss out on this opportunity – you will be sent the discount code if you join before 11.59pm on Sunday August 7.

And watch out for more tickets going on sale in the coming weeks – including for England women's match against Slovenia in Gillingham on November 22.
