PG Mutual have signed a three-year deal to become the Official Income Protection Partner of Table Tennis England.

It follows the St Alban's-based company's successful title sponsorship of the PG Mutual National Championships in 2016, when the latter stages of the tournament were televised live on ITV4.

PG Mutual will continue to put its name to the Nationals as part of the new deal. In addition, the company will have the opportunity to play a key role in staging the Cadet & Junior Nationals and the U10-U13 Nationals.

Mike Perry, CEO of PG Mutual, said: "Table Tennis England organised a very professional PG Mutual Nationals last year which were well received by spectators, the TV audience and the wider table tennis family, so we were keen to extend our involvement in the sport."

"I know what an exciting and family-friendly sport it is, as well as being a great way to be active and socialise with others. It fits in perfectly with our family-focused business approach."

Table Tennis England Chief Executive Sara Sutcliffe said: "We're delighted to extend our relationship with PG Mutual.

"Mike Perry and his team have shown outstanding commitment to help us develop our sport – this really is a partnership in every sense and we look forward to continuing to work together to help get everyone talking about table tennis."

As part of the deal, PG Mutual are offering a 20% discount on income protection insurance to Table Tennis England members. Click here for details on this and other membership benefits.

Table Tennis England plans to name further Official Partners in the coming months.
