

Jenkins back in field for Cleveland GP

Author: Paul Stimpson

Posted On: January 10, 2017

We're into the second half of the Grand Prix season and it's time for a first appearance of the season for champion Ryan Jenkins.

The Welsh wizard, with more than 50 individual GP victories under his belt, has been absent from the main events so far, but is top seed as the series rolls into Cleveland this weekend.

His biggest challenge will come from Mike O'Driscoll and Tipton Grand Prix runner-up Matt Leete in the event at Thornaby Pavilion, which is the fifth of eight main Grand Prix meetings and the first visit to the North East this season.

The draw has now been made – click here to view the event programme online.

Entries are also open for the sixth stop in the series in Bath on February 11 and 12 – click here for more information or to download an entry form. You can also enter online by clicking here

You can keep up to date with all the action from Cleveland on our website and on Twitter via @TableTennisENG

Downloaded From:

<https://newsarchive.tabletennisengland.co.uk/news/featured-news/jenkins-back-in-field-for-cleveland-gp/>