Both England Leopards men and women will face opponents they met in the qualifying rounds at the European Team Championships later this year.

The draw for the championships in Luxembourg in September was carried out yesterday, supervised by Stuart Sherlock, who will referee the tournament.

England's men will line up in Group E against Netherlands – who they twice beat in the qualifying group – Denmark and Ireland in the second-tier Challenge Division.

Meanwhile, the women will again face Slovenia, who they beat 3-2 home and away in qualifying, as well as Greece and Israel, in Group H of the Challenge Division.

The full draw is as follows:

Women's Championships Division

Group A: Germany, Hungary, Sweden, Croatia
