Four England players made it through the singles qualifying groups of the Polish Open to reach the knockout stages.

Sam Walker won his group in the men's singles and will join Liam Pitchford, who is seeded sixth, in the main draw tomorrow. David McBeath won his group but was then eliminated in a preliminary round by Sadi Ismailov of Russia.

In the women's singles, Tin-Tin Ho and Kelly Sibley won their groups, although Sibley needed a monumental comeback from 3-0 down to Veronika Perebeinos of Ukraine in her first match.

Tom Jarvis picked up a good win over world No 235 Felipe Olivares of Chile, ranked 113 places above him, but was eliminated in a three-way countback having lost his earlier match, while Karina Le Fevre, Hannah Hicks, Maria Tsaptsinos and Emily Bolton were eliminated in the women's groups.

Tsaptsinos and Bolton made it through the women's under-21 qualifying groups and will join Ho in the main draw. Jarvis was seeded straight through to the main draw in the men's under-21s.

In the doubles, Pitchford & Jarvis won qualifying matches against pairs from Belarus and Saudi Arabia to set up a match in the first round against top seeds Jiang Tianyi & Lam Siu Hang of Hong Kong. Walker & McBeath were eliminated in the second qualifying stage.

In the women's draw, Bolton & Hicks won their first qualifying round match to join two other English pairs in the second qualifying round. However, they and Ho & Tsaptsinos were knocked out at that stage.

Sibley & Le Fevre won through against a pair from France and Serbia but were beaten in the final round before the main draw by a combined Turkish-Norwegian pairing.
